

Beumer opens Scandinavian office

Beumer Group, Beckum, Germany, a worldwide supplier of specialised conveying, palletisation, packaging and distribution systems, is opening a new office in Scandinavia. It is to be located in Aarhus, Denmark, sharing premises with Crisplant, a former competitor specialising in automated sorting technologies for modern logistics systems relating to baggage and materials handling acquired by Beumer in 2009.

“Scandinavia is of course a major industrial region and as such it makes sense that we should have a market presence there. The new office will allow us to service our Scandinavian customers even better, as well as support our expansion throughout the region,” said Beumer’s manager for Scandinavia Torben Lund. The family-owned group currently has production facilities and more than 2300 employees in Europe and Asia. www.beumer.com

The factory and headquarters of Beumer subsidiary Crisplant in Aarhus, Denmark, where the new Scandinavian office is located and (right) a Beumer robotpac sack palletiser