

Lödige strengthens Latin American presence

Gebr. Lödige Maschinenbau, Paderborn, Germany, has established a strategic partnership with Semco Equipamentos Industriais Ltda. This Brazilian manufacturer of industrial mixers with registered office in São Paulo will in future represent Lödige in South America as a distributor and licence holder. Semco has long experience in the field of process technology including production of mixers, reactors and driers with special focus on mining, chemical, pharmaceutical and food industries. It will now assume responsibility for sales and installation of Lödige machines in Brazil, Paraguay, Uruguay, Argentina and Chile. All standard components for process technology applications will be manufactured under licence directly in Brazil. This country represents the eighth largest economy worldwide and its third largest industry is chemicals. All South American countries are expecting sustained economic growth.

With this new partnership, Lödige expects to be able to react much better to specific regional customer requirements. www.loedige.de; www.semcoequipamentos.com.br
