

Penko officially opens new head office

In a ceremony attended by over 200 people, high-speed weighing and measuring technology specialist Penko Engineering on 27 January officially opened its new headquarters and manufacturing facility in Ede, the Netherlands (see Industry News for week of 30 November 2009). Fred Foster, CEO of parent company ETC Inc, gave a speech setting out Penko's objectives and expectations, underlining the importance of this major investment in such a difficult economic climate. This was preceded by an opening address from Anita van den Ende, the Dutch government minister who is director of European affairs, competition and consumer policy of the Ministry of Economics. She explained the government's industrial policy and how Penko fits into its plans, concluding by warmly welcoming ETC's investment in the Netherlands. www.penko.com

Fred Foster opens the new Penko Engineering headquarters