

SHAPA Knowledge Conference less than three weeks away

On Tuesday 5 October the UK's Solids Handling and Processing Association (SHAPA) will hold its second annual Knowledge Conference (see Industry News for week of 5 July). As last time, the event will take place at the Imago Holywell Park Conference Centre at Loughborough University. The morning will open with a keynote paper by Jeegar Kakkad of the Engineering Employers Federation on “The outlook for British manufacturing” and Dr Wendy Buckley of leading carbon management company Carbon Footprint Ltd will open the afternoon with an address on “Why carbon management matters to you”. For the rest of the day delegates can choose sessions from two streams of presentations delivered by speakers who are experts in their field. Delegates will receive material from every session, whether individually attended or not. The full agenda and registration form can be found on the SHAPA website: www.shapa.co.uk
