

New silo design to be unveiled at FAKUMA

Zeppelin Silos & Systems, Friedrichshafen, Germany, will be launching a completely new type of silo construction at the FAKUMA international plastics exhibition which takes place 13-17 October. The prototype of the new concept features screw-fit modular construction which has been developed with the assistance of several research institutes. New assembly and installation techniques lead to significant reductions in transport costs and the storage vessels are also easier to install on site. The first units have already been delivered to customers and are said to have performed fully to expectation. www.zeppelin-industry.com